

From bad SEO experiences to concrete business impact from WP SEO AI

WattSlimmer, a fast-growing Dutch sustainability company, wanted to break free from branded traffic dependency and build scalable organic reach across solar, heat pump, and home battery searches.

WP SEO AI developed a content-driven SEO strategy targeting high-intent sustainability topics, publishing 240 AI-optimized articles over six months, with no heavy time investment required from the WattSlimmer team.

Despite a history of failed agency experiences, organic clicks grew from 90 to 2,582 per month, with AI-generated content accounting for 95% of all organic traffic by May 2026.

Case Study

Challenge - SEO Burnout

WattSlimmer offers a broad range of sustainable home solutions, from solar panels and heat pumps to home batteries and insulation, but its online visibility didn't reflect that potential. The company was almost entirely dependent on branded and homepage traffic, with organic reach stuck at just 40 visitors per month.

The deeper problem was trust. WattSlimmer had spent over €4,000 per month with traditional SEO agencies and seen little return. With no transparency and no measurable results, the team was understandably skeptical about trying yet another marketing solution.

WP SEO AI's - Approach

WP SEO AI implemented a content-driven SEO strategy focused on high-intent sustainability topics and customer questions. AI-powered keyword research identified search opportunities around heat pumps, home batteries, solar energy, and installation-related topics.

Over six months, 240 SEO-focused content pieces were published, with AI continuously optimizing topics, structure, search intent, and keyword targeting. This enabled WattSlimmer to rapidly expand its visibility while maintaining a lean marketing operation.
